

HARTSFIELD HEARING IS SET

Nevada Grand Jury To Investigate The Slaying of 2 Women

First Time Since His Appointment

NIGHT CIVIL DOCKET

Murder Cases Are Set For the Second Week of Court

RESCOTT, Ark., July 14.—Nevada circuit court met here today for its July session with Judge Bush presiding. It is the first time Judge Bush has presided over the court of his home county since his appointment by the governor to fill the unexpired term of the late Judge Jas. H. McCollum.

The court is scheduled to begin consideration of its civil docket immediately after the grand jury has been given its instructions. The civil docket is unusually light and is not expected to take up more than a few days. Trial of criminal cases is scheduled to start the second week of court. Two murders are to be investigated by the grand jury, both of them resulting in the death of women during quarrels between men. One McCoy is held for the fatal shooting of Mrs. Fells Phillips near Falcon on May 3. McCoy has never made a statement since the shooting but his brother, Ben McCoy, testified against him at the preliminary hearing.

"Obie had been drinking," Ben McCoy said. "We had been having a fuss at our home and I had gone outside on the porch. I opened the front door to go inside the house. At the same time Mrs. Phillips, my sister-in-law, who had been standing in front of the looking glass just beside the door stepped in front of the door as it opened. She was directly in front of the opening while I was on the right, behind the door, which opened inward. Just as she moved Obie fired a shotgun and the charge struck her in the lower part of the face and killed her."

All feeling between the McCoy brothers was said to have been caused by the fact that Obie McCoy accompanied officers on still raid near Ben McCoy's home.

Obie fled but was arrested a few days later at a farm house in the southern part of the county. His story conflicted with Ben's version. He said that he and Ben and Mrs. Phillips had been out on a party and that he and Ben had possession of the house. He was accidentally discharged.

John L. Daniels, 60-year-old Nevada county farmer and former justice of the peace, faces a first degree murder charge for the death of Mildred Jobe, 15-year-old daughter of J. N. Jobe, at her home in the Caneau community 20 miles southeast of here on the morning of June 9. Jobe testified at the preliminary hearing that Daniels came to Jobe's home to demand return of a shotgun which the deputy sheriff had taken from Roy Daniels at the time of the arrest, and which he said had been left at the sheriff's office in the courthouse.

The ill feeling between Jobe and Daniels was said to have been caused by the arrest by Jobe, who is a deputy sheriff, of Daniels' son, Roy Daniels, the day before the fatal quarrel. Saturday's Street Murder

An Editorial

HOPE had a narrow escape from mob violence Saturday afternoon, a few hours after the brutal killing of a Hempstead county woman in a traffic accident on Main street.

Officers apprehended a man suspected of being the driver of the car. A crowd of several hundred rushed through The Star building and other establishments on Main street, following the officers and making threats. Fortunately, the law had the situation well in hand.

It now remains for the police and the courts to make a summary example of a motorist who is just as real a murderer as though he had used a gun. A wife and mother is dead—killed in the protected runway which every city reserves for the use of pedestrians. Traffic accidents are sometimes unavoidable. But here was a tragic scene enacted in plain view of hundreds of shoppers, in which no possible defense appears for the man at the wheel. He came across a boulevard stop-sign without stopping. He was traveling at high speed. He killed a pedestrian, and never stopped to give aid or an account to the police.

Such a man is a problem for the courts rather than the traffic-control system of the city. No system is proof against a motorist who is drunk or crazy. After the courts are through with him he should be prohibited from ever touching an automobile again in the state of Arkansas.

Saturday's tragedy has a lesson for all motorists. It couldn't have happened if the driver had stopped at the boulevard sign. He would have been in low gear approaching the pedestrian lines, and could have stopped almost instantly. Hope's system of stop-signs is one of the best ever devised. It is superior to the electric trafficsignals other cities have tried and are discontinuing, because it is a system that is convenient to pedestrians and motorists alike. But when the driver fails to stop, Saturday's tragedy will be repeated under any system. This is a plea to Hope drivers to observe Saturday's terrible lesson. The law must take its course, yet anyone close to the scene must have found his sympathies with that street crowd which in a few more minutes would have become a mob.

Baptist Minister Slain By Burglar

The Police Fail to Find Prowler After the Shooting

DALLAS, Texas, July 14.—(AP)—While his wife looked on, Charles S. Maxson, 33, ordained in the Baptist ministry and Dallas salesman, was killed in his Oak Cliff home here early Sunday by a prowler whom he had ordered from his bedroom. After shooting Maxson, who died about an hour later, the burglar fled toward the Fort Worth pike. He had not been captured Sunday night.

The prowler walked Maxson as he entered the bedroom and Mrs. Maxson was aroused when she heard her husband order the intruder to leave. Rev. and Mrs. Maxson screamed and neighbors came to their assistance, but not until too late to catch the prowler.

Rev. Maxson believed in the darkness that the prowler was a negro but Mrs. Maxson described him as a white man.

Maxson was ordained in the Baptist ministry in 1925 and had held pastorate in two rural churches near Marshall. He had been studying in the Baptist College of Marshall and would have graduated there next year.

Truck Crops Suffer From Heat at Horatio

HORATIO, July 14.—A total of 20 cars of cantaloupes have been shipped from here including Saturday's loadings with an estimate of only 15 per cent of a normal crop due to the drought period. No rain has fallen here for over seven weeks and the truck and farm crops are suffering.

The temperatures for the past three days have been unusually high reaching 95 Friday. According to local marketing agencies, normal rainfall would have produced two hundred cars of cantaloupes here this season.

Detectives Hunt For Noted Killer

Fifteen Members of the Police Squad on Man Hunt

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., July 14.—(AP)—Fifteen Chicago detectives, aided by Michigan state police and sheriff's officers, Sunday were searching the lakes district of Newaygo county, 40 miles north of here, for Fred Burke, notorious Chicago gangster.

The Chicago detectives, led by Lieutenant John McGinnis, and Sergeant Thomas Lamie, left Chicago at 4 a. m. Sunday after they received information that Burke might be found in Newaygo county.

Detectives are said to have learned that Burke has been living in a Newaygo county home for three months with a young woman described as a blonde and has made frequent trips to Chicago.

Information that he was living in Michigan was received after Mrs. Thomas Bonner, widow of a man slain last week in Chicago, was said to have identified Burke as the slayer of her husband.

Skeletons Found Under Seminary

Supposed to Have Been Persons Put to Death in 16th Century

CUENCA, Spain, July 14.—(AP)—About 200 skeletons, supposedly those of persons put to death in the 16th century, were viewed Sunday by thousands who visited a dungeon in the underground chambers of the old Santa Clara seminary where the bones were discovered Saturday. Officials said the position of some of the skeletons indicated the victims had died in terrible agony. Some of the bodies were mummified. Ropes had been tied about the necks and waists of several. One mummy, apparently that of a woman, was fastened with ropes to a projecting rock.

Evidently the victims were thrust into the dungeon through a hatch hole at the top. The dungeon was about 14 by 15 feet in size. A mirror, which distorted the appearance of the sufferers, was found inside. The authorities, considering the discovery of great historical significance, began operation in the investigation of the dungeon, which was discovered during repairs on the old seminary for the priesthood there.

College Loses Suit to Keep Endowment

Old Henderson-Brown Abandoned, Is Ruling By Court

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 14.—A decision of widespread importance affecting numerous persons who made endowments to the former Henderson-Brown College at Arkadelphia, was rendered by Judge C. E. Johnson in the suit of J. S. Cargile against the board of trustees of the college in Clark Chancery Court.

Cargile brought suit to recover $5,000 endowment made to the college on the ground that it had been abandoned, but the trustees, composed of H. C. Couch, W. C. Ribenack and W. E. Barkland, through their attorneys, alleged that there had been no abandonment, but a merger with Hendrix College at Conway.

The Cargile endowment of $5,000 was made, said his attorneys, on the condition that it remain the property of the Methodist church. Cargile alleged that the trust had failed.

The court ruled that the trust had failed and that there was a complete abandonment of Henderson-Brown and gave judgment to the plaintiff.

While this was not a test suit, the decision affects many persons whose total endowments have reached approximately $150,000, it was stated.

Corn Situation Critical Just Now

The County Agents Urge the Cutting of Fodder For Feed

The corn situation in Hempstead county is critical according to Lynn Smith, county agent. The corn should be cut for fodder, since feed for livestock this winter promises to be extremely scarce. When the corn is removed from the ground a chance may be taken, to get a feed crop in the late fall, by planting a row of peas in the middles, and planning to give them at least one cultivation. Whether the latter crop can be grown successfully will depend upon how soon it rains and upon the amount of moisture this fall.

It should be remembered that corn fodder is far more valuable as feed if it is placed in shelter as soon as it is properly cured out.

Attacks Parnell Over Tobacco Levy

Hays Claims Governor Had No Interest in Bill as He Claims

ARKADELPHIA, July 14.—(AP)—Charging that Governor Parnell's "only concern" is to use the schools and school leaders for political profit, Brooks Hays, gubernatorial candidate, in an address here Saturday night accused the governor of never showing "a genuine interest in the cause of education."

He attacked a purported statement of the governor that he had written the cigar and cigarette tax law, while he was a member of the senate in 1922. "Harvey Parnell knows very well that he did not write the act," Hays said.

"People really interested in the school problem know that the cigar and cigarette tax law was adopted in 1923," Hays declared. "It was passed in 1924 at the same special session at which the McRae income tax program went down to defeat before Senator Parnell and his cohorts."

Hays stated that Parnell's introduction of the cigar and cigarette tax bill was a "subterfuge" and quoted a purported statement of the late Governor McRae which accused opponents of the McRae income tax program in 1924 of injecting "the Parnell bill as a smoke screen." They never intended it to become a law," Hays quoted McRae as saying.

Funeral Service For Mrs. Vines Was Held Sunday

Preliminary hearing for John Hartsfield, alleged driver of an automobile which struck down and instantly killed Mrs. Lum Vines, 35, and injured her daughter, Mrs. Maud Duke, will be heard in this city Thursday according to advices received by The Star at noon today. The hearing will be held in the court of Justice W. G. Bright, local judge of the Peace.

Feeling ran high here following the accident. A charge of manslaughter was pending in the department of the state. The case was filed in the afternoon of the accident.

At the same time Mrs. Phillips, my sister-in-law, who had been standing in front of the looking glass just beside the door stepped in front of the door as it opened. Just as she moved Obie fired a shotgun and the charge struck her in the lower part of the face and killed her."

As soon as Hartsfield was recognized, and was seen to enter the St. Barbours, the south part of Main street turned into a milling mass of citizens who had gathered and placed him in a waiting automobile which speeded him out of town.

Hartsfield was recognized as he alighted from the car and started into The Star barbershop two doors away. Officer Homer Burke, night patrolman who was standing nearby, was called and rushed Hartsfield through the barbershop, out a rear door and to the general store of Tom Billingsley, where additional aid was summoned. Officers who rushed to the scene took Hartsfield out through the throng of citizens who had gathered and placed him in a waiting automobile which speeded him out of town.

A Good Soldier Passes.

THE United States marine corps has lost one of its greatest men in the death of Maj.-Gen. Wendell C. Neville, and the nation has lost one of its finest soldiers—a soldier of the old traditional type, and one of the very best examples of that type ever seen.

General Neville was a professional fighting man. That was his life, and from early manhood to his death he was either fighting or preparing to fight. He entered the marine corps upon graduation from the naval academy in 1892, and after a few years of peace went to Cuba with the expeditionary forces during the war with Spain.

From that time on he had a career like the careers that Kipling was fond of describing. From Cuba he went to China for Boxer campaign. Thence he went to the Philippines, to serve in the long, bloody campaign by which the United States put down the insurrectionary movement there. Then, after a brief breathing spell, he had a part in the expedition to Vera Cruz, winning the Congressional medal of Honor for his gallantry there. After this he served in Haiti and the Dominican republic, and in 1917 he went to France.

In France he had his most stirring experiences of all. He commanded the famous Fifth marine regiment at Verdun
 and Belleau Wood, won promotion to command of a brigade and served at Soissons, St. Mihiel, Champagne and in the Meuse-Argonne. After the armistice he led the Fourth Brigade into Germany.

That was his life—the life of a fighter, who risked his life in almost every quarter of the globe at the command of his country.

It is a good record. And, as one surveys it, one wonders if General Neville will not, perhaps, be one of the last Americans to compile that sort of record.

The old world is changing—faster than we sometimes realize. The old days of Kipling imperialism are dying. The drift of the world is toward peace. There are grounds for hoping that the professional fighting man will not be kept as busy in the future as he has in the past.

That, of course, does not detract from General Neville's record. He lived in a period when there was a good deal of fighting to do. He did rather more than his share, and he did it well.

A Heroine And A Kiss

SOMEBODY or other once remarked that women are rather hard to understand. Every now and then something happens to make the average man wonder if maybe there isn't something in that ancient saying.

Take, for instance, the long argument about the double standard of morality.

Women have protested against this for generations. I have tried to realize that things which a man can do without damage to his reputation are considered out of bounds for women. They have written books about it, made speeches about it and talked at great length to dinner partners on the subject.

Miss Johnson, as you know, is the young aviatrix who flew from England to Australia alone. Right now she is the idol of the British empire. She is a sort of feminine Lindbergh, getting the same sort of public adulation that Lindy got after his flight to Paris.

The other day Miss Johnson was being driven through some Australian city. A young man in the crowd, carried away by his heroine-worship, sprang to the running board of her car, leaned over the door and kissed her.

Miss Johnson, without delay, swung a lusty fist and whacked him on the nose. Apparently it was a hard, well-directed punch; and no one, since then, has tried to kiss this aviatrix.

Public characters have to put up with a good deal. Men who have won sudden fame have been kissed, promiscuously
 by fair admirers. Lindbergh has dodged countless kisses.
 One need not look back far to remember how Richard P.
 Hobson, Spanish war hero, was kissed—as one might say—
 from coast to coast.

This was all part of the game. The men have stood for it as best they could. Those that they could dodge, they dodged;
 when they couldn't they took it with a good grace.

But when it comes to be woman's turn—what happens?
 Does women accept the chance to set up the single standard?
 She does not. Woman—in the person of Amy Johnson—seeks the nose of the would-be kisser.

Anybody, apparently, can kiss a famous young man with impunity. But to kiss a famous young woman it is still necessary—as in the benighted old double-standard days—
 to get her full consent first.

Somehow, it is all rather puzzling.

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—Retail prices of food have been coming down,
 but by no means as rapidly as wholesale prices. They never do.

When the farmer gets low prices for his products the consumer sometimes eventually gets a little of the benefit, but not until the middle man and the retailer get theirs, if then.

C. B. Denman of the Federal Farm Board recently pointed to sharp declines in the prices of beef. Dressed beef in Chicago, he says, has been selling for from 20 to 37 per cent less than a year ago, the greatest reductions being in the cheaper cuts. Retail prices for beef, he assured all housewives, ought to reflect the full reduction possible under present
 prices.

Doesn't Help the Housewife
 But none of the government's figures available here indicate that the housewife has been getting much of a break on sirloin or round steaks, or rib roasts or chuck roasts.

On a rough estimate, however,
 it is said that wholesale prices of food are about 10 per cent lower than the high mark last year and retail prices about 5 per cent. The monthly survey of retail food prices made by the Bureau of Labor Statistics covers 22 of the most commonly used articles of food and its wholesale survey 121 items, so no exact comparison is possible. The bureau depends upon about 1,500 retailers for the information for its surveys, so it never compares comparative wholesale and retail prices, which would make the retailers sore.

Retailers are reluctant to change their prices, either upwards or downwards, it is explained. Sometimes they feel that slight increases would be justified
 and yet fear to offend the consumer by making them. On the other hand, it is naturally much easier to refrain from cutting prices when wholesale prices drop. The retailers never notice lower wholesale prices as quickly as they observe increased wholesale
 prices.

Usually there are two steps between the producer and the consumer—the jobber, or middle man, and the retailer. The wholesale price, as commonly understood, is the price paid by the middle man. The middle man usually gets a slice during the invariable lag between declining wholesale prices and declining retail prices, but experts on these facts believe the retailer usually gets the larger slice. The wide-awake retailer knows his price trends and he can make the middle man observe them easier than the ultimate customer can persuade the retailer to follow them.

Some blame is placed on the consumer, however, for increasing retail costs. It costs more to retail food now than it did. "Time
 was when people bought potatoes
 by the bushels, flour by the barrel, apples by the peck, meat in huge chunks and eggs at least by the dozen. In these days of kitchenettes the retailer finds himself doling out two or three eggs or a single lamb chop at a time and flour, potatoes, apples and such food are bought often in one-pound lots.

The most ambitious baby on record
 is the one born at Denver recently with a full set of teeth. He believes in starting life's grind early.

The first quarter of an hour after birth, says a physician, is the most dangerous period of life. Except that period when you try to beat out a changing traffic light.

The refusal of the former president
 to turn out his daily article on Sunday leads us to suspect he's already made plans for a little fishing.

Stage Beauties—In Siam

Logging Camps Turning To Golf

Era Hits Woodmen Who Once Preferred Bare- Fists Combats

SALEM, Ore., July 12.—(UP)—Another and perhaps one of the last frontiers of the old west is being threatened by the refining influences
 of civilization.

Information comes trickling in from several logging camps of the Oregon
 country, which once knew the lusty loggers' roar, the sharp ring of the axe, the song of the saw, that certain
 "bulls of the woods" have laid aside
 the mightier implements of their profession to waggle a golf stick at a little white pellet on the Sabbath or when day's work is done.

Old timers of the Oregon country and the Puget Sound were amazed to hear apparently authentic reports that many of these horny handed sons of toil, these hard-fisted, hairy-chested, brawny fighting men from out of the timber, had laid out golf courses
 among the raw butts of trees felled by the woodsmen's axe and saw, and were practicing their drives and putts
 for a match with the champion of a neighboring logging camp.

There was a time, and not so long ago, when the men came out of the woods of Old Oregon for their semi-annual melee with the gangs of other camps, for scraps that made history
 and furnished material for numberless tales throughout the long nights in camp. Strong liquor was drunk, magnificent lies were told, mighty roof-shaking songs were sung. They swarmed into town after six months
 of heart-breaking toil in the woods, filled up on loggers' red-eye, met the crew of another camp in open combat
 on the bar-room floor.

Little did they mind if an ear was torn off, a face gouged by steel-spiked boots, an arm or two broken, or a four-inch mat of greasy hair torn off.
 Nose-biting, eye gouging, face scratching, punching, whamming, kicking,
 was countenanced as perfectly honorable warfare. A building might be torn to pieces, a hundred chairs broken, a thousand glasses and bottles shattered, but that was only to be expected.

But the lumberjack has learned refinement, according to these reports,
 and now the heavy bull of the woods
 arranges himself in natty oxfords, plaid
 socks, golf knickers, form-fitting sweater, neat black bow tie and tweed cap,
 and visits other camps on the days of the match while his "colleagues" stand silently by at a respectful distance when he attempts a difficult putt on the green.

When the next earthquake shakes
 the land, old-timers will know it is Baul Bunyan turning over in his grave.

"One - Night Stands"

REMEMBER the medicine shows that used to come to town?
 With minstrel music and flaring gaslight, the eloquent "Doctor" sold a good many bottles of his marvelous elixir. No chance to discover that it was only molasses and water! He was gone next day to another town, playing "one-night stands."

Modern advertising and selling methods are very different.
 Merchants and manufacturers are in business day after day, year after year, at the same address. They need your continued custom. They must tell the story of their merchandise truthfully to keep your confidence. They must offer honest values to insure your satisfaction. And they do—in the advertising pages.

Read the advertisements. There's no surer, easier way to economical buying. They show you what you want at the lowest price and tell you where it may be had. You can go direct to get it or order it delivered. You save time, save money. Read the advertisements—and read them regularly.

Brooks Hays Heard by a Large Crowd

Brooks Hays, candidate for governor, was a guest of honor Tuesday night in the interest of his candidacy and spoke to an audience of between 300 and 400 people in the Presbyterian grove.

Mr. Hays is a wonderful speaker, having a good flow of language, and a splendid delivery. He is a nice looking boy.

Mr. Hays speech was directed for the most part to criticism of the state highway department and the state administration. According to his speech not one good thing has been accomplished since the Martineau road law went into effect. This in spite of the fact that three years ago Arkansas ranked 27th in roads in comparison with other states and today it ranks third.

No remedies for existing evils were offered except to vote to put the administration out and to put his crowd in.

He said the income tax law was good, but denied that the present administration deserved credit for the passage of same.

He charged that Parnell defeated Gov. McRae's income tax measure, but failed to state that even up to his death McRae was a friend of Parnell and worked for his election two years ago.

Justin Matthews came in for criticism, and if half of what Hays charged is true, Hays himself would have had Matthews indicted, convicted and placed in the penitentiary before this campaign was begun.

It was a good speech from an oratorical viewpoint. —Gurdon Times.

Report Of Garden Work In County

Mrs. D. M. Samuels of the DeAnn Community Makes Report

Much interest has been shown in garden work this spring and summer. The women have enrolled in the Arkansas State Garden contest in Hempstead county. Mrs. Lat Moss of Washington was selected as the County Garden demonstrator and due to the dry weather there has not been a field visiting day, but plans are made to have this visit for the fall gardens. Along with garden work, each home demonstration club member is trying to follow the adequate diet for her family, and to preserve enough foods to follow this diet during the time that she can not gather the fresh vegetables from her garden.

P. & N. W. Haul Out 30 Cars Tomatoes

Shipment Is Expected To Be Heavy Over This Week

Shipment of tomatoes over the territory in north Hempstead county, with M'Caskill and Blevins as the largest shipping centers picked up last week.

Already a total of thirty cars have been shipped out of the territory by the Prescott & Northwestern railroad. According to the growers the price being received for this product this season is very satisfactory. The crop is expected to be cut somewhat short this season on account of the dry weather, it is said.

The acreage in tomatoes this season throughout this section is approximately 400 acres.

Rain Helps Crops East Of Blevins

Most of the Rain Last Week Fell In This Area

Among the heaviest rains falling in the county last week was over a section a mile or so east of Blevins and on toward Prescott.

Crops throughout the area covered were greatly benefited, although the hot sun shining down the next day dried the moisture up very fast, many of the cotton middles had water in them the next afternoon.

In the town of Blevins the rainfall was much lighter, only about a half an inch of the top soil being wet.

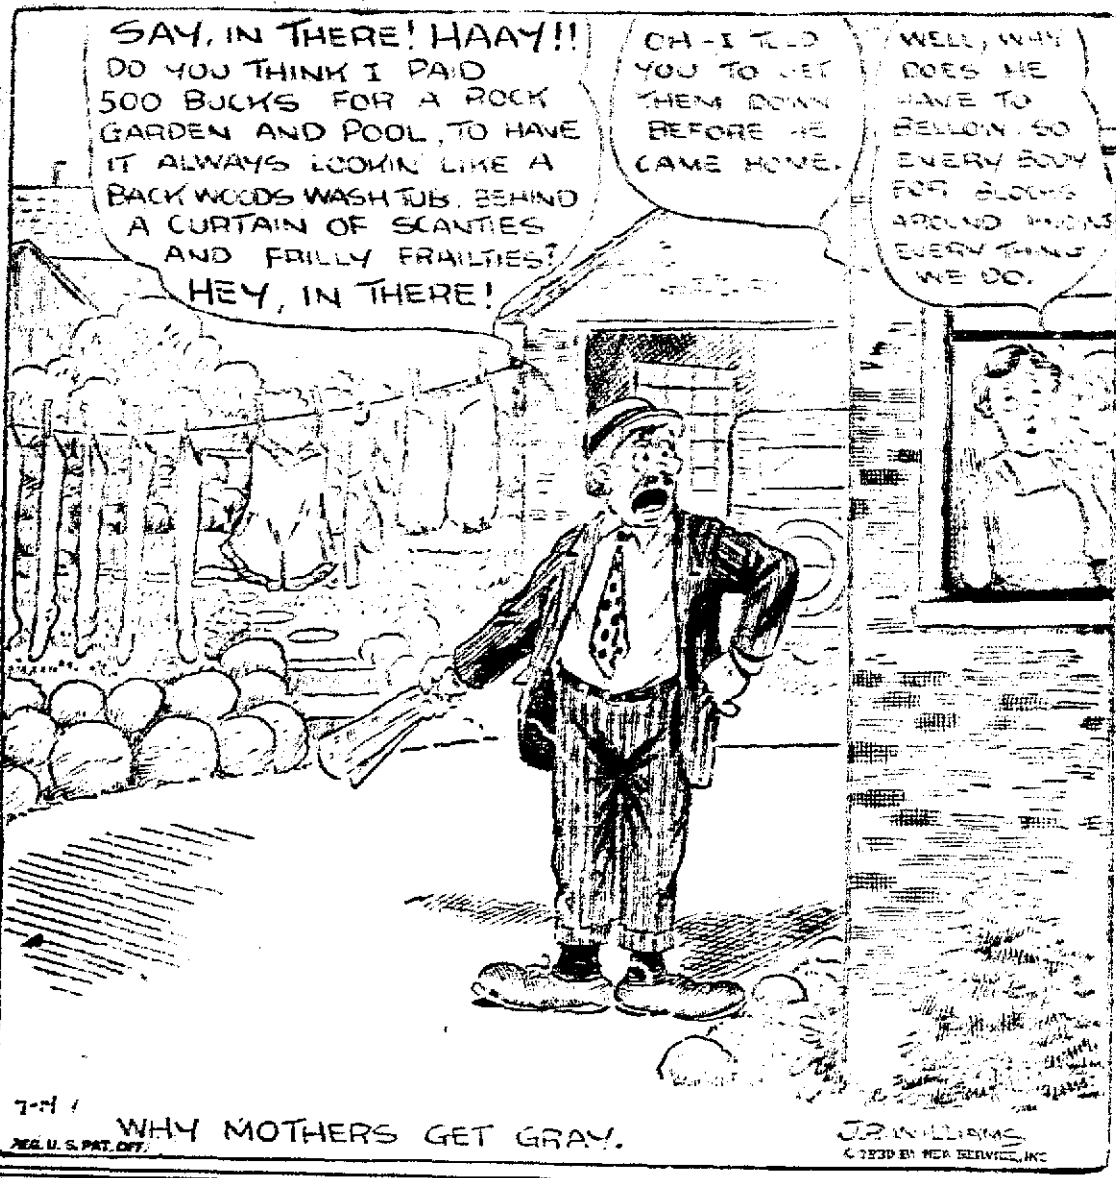

At M'Caskill only a few drops of rain fell.

Some sections reported no rain at all.

McCaskill Plans A Water System

Have Deep Well That Has Not Been in Use For Years

At a meeting of the McCaskill town council last week plans were discussed for a town water system.

The town already has a deep well, 35 or 40 feet deep, drilled twelve or fifteen years ago. For some reason pumping facilities were not obtained, nor drawing the water from it and the well has been standing idle all the while.

With the completion of an electric line into the town recently, several citizens realized that now the water from the deep well could be pumped with electric power.

No action was taken in the matter until the continued dry weather has caused the water supply of the community to be threatened.

It is the plan of the council to make a survey of the town and start up all wells. By this means they will ascertain the use of the pumping equipment that will have to be purchased.

Action will be taken in the matter at once as the continued dry weather has been a serious blow to the water supply of this community.

May the richest blessings of Jehovah be upon the editor and publishers of this great paper. May He bless them with long life and continued success. Again I say, I am grateful to the editor and paper, and the people of Hope ought to be happy and proud over their local paper and staff.

May God bless you all in my prayer. Evangelist H. Paul Lewis, 825 Sixth Place, Nashville, Tenn.

Girl Is Swept Thru Drain Pipe

While there are no grounds for argument as to the merits of mash feeding, poultrymen are not fully in agreement as to the most efficient method of using the complete, ground mixture. The majority feed it in dry form but a goodly percentage of successful operators prefer to use the wet mash. This indicates that either feeding method will give good results if properly used.

Again we find many authorities using and recommending a combination of dry and wet mash, the feeding being regulated by such factors as the season of the year, the rate of production, the general condition of the flock, etc. As the subject is of such importance an extended discussion of it is in order.

PRIOR to the opening of the present century it was the universal custom to feed ground grain mixtures in a moist condition. A "hot mash" was regarded as being one of the things required to induce winter egg production. Complete, complex mash mixtures of the character now so generally used had not been perfected. The dry mash system of feeding as now practiced was developed in New England during the opening of the present century and soon came into general use. Its popularity has increased with the years.

Dry mash feeding is advisable because it is convenient. One can fill the troughs or hoppers at any convenient time, know that his birds are well fed so long as the mash is before them, and avoid the trouble of a fixed feeding schedule.

It is safe, because the birds can pick out too much of the grain in the dry, finely ground form. It gives completely good results because it affords a continuous supply of suitable feed materials and thus permits every bird to consume that amount of feed which its body demands.

Highway Forces Pass McCaskill

Blevins-Nashville Road Is Graded Except a Few Miles

Dirt work on the Blevins-Nashville stretch of highway No. 24, a distance of seventeen miles now under construction is finished between Blevins and McCaskill, except through the Ozan creek bottom.

All bridges also have been completed over the same area. Timbers for the remainder of the bridges, between McCaskill and Nashville are cut and approximately all of the lumber is on the ground.

Plans for grading through the bottom have not been announced according to information received by the Star, but it is expected this work will be commenced within the near future.

Graveling of the road already graded is also expected to commence within a short time.

Completion of this link of highway No. 24 will cause much tourist traffic to be routed through northern Hempstead county, as this highway runs from Prescott to DeQueen, and then on into Oklahoma.

Construction work of this road has been under the supervision of Mr. C. W. Robey, a man who is widely experienced in road building. Much comment is heard from citizens who live along the route, as to the remarkable progress made and the deep personal feeling of understanding and good will that exists between Mr. Robey and his force of hands.

Many From North Part of County Hear Long

Several farmers and business men from the north part of the county attended the farmer's meeting and banquet in Hope last Friday night and heard C. M. (Cow Man) Long speak.

Much favorable comment was heard on the meeting and address by the Star's reporter as he made his weekly visit through the territory last week.

Ex-President Coolidge, who has contracted to write a syndicated daily column, was once called "Silent Cal."

Saw Mill Closes For The Lack of Water

Water for use in the boiler at the mill was obtained from a pond nearby, which has entirely dried up.

Our Poultry Column

Edited by Prof. Frederic H. Stoneburn

THE theory of mash feeding is the best system for absolutely essential to chicks and the beginner and side-line poultryman.

ONE must admit that poultry of all kinds and ages seem to prefer moist mash to feed in any other form. The birds will consume the daily amount of dry feed and then greedily eat wet mash if given an opportunity. The thoughtful poultry feeder will instantly see that this fact can be used to advantage when for any reason it is desired to induce his flocks to consume greater quantities of feed.

Ordinarily, no change need be made in the mash mixture. Merely moisten the dry mash with water, or better, skim milk or butter-milk until it sticks together, is crumbly but never too wet or sloppy. Feed it on long boards or in open troughs, being sure that there is sufficient feeding space to permit every bird to get its share. Too little feeding space means rushing and crowding, with possible injury to some birds. In any event it means that the weaker members of the flock which must need the extra feed will be unable to secure it.

The wet mash should always be fed shortly after mixing so it will have no opportunity to sour. And feed boards and troughs should be kept clean since the eating of sour or moldy mash will cause digestive troubles.

AT THIS season of the year a daily meal of wet mash may be used to advantage to maintain and often increase the production of the adult birds and to hasten the development of pullets, particularly those from the late hatches.

As a rule it is best to give the daily meal of wet mash about noon as this plan does not upset the regular feeding schedule. Let the quantity be regulated by the appetite of the birds. Do not overfeed, giving only that amount which the flock will clean up in about fifteen minutes.

Remember, this daily meal of wet mash is not intended to replace any part of the regular ration, it is merely additional feed. Keep the dry mash hoppers filled as usual and feed the customary allowance of scratch grain.

This combination plan of feeding involves some additional labor, but when properly done it often increases the output of laying flocks and helps to sustain production during the same or months when the egg yield commonly falls off. And it certainly hastens the growth and development of the pullets.

FOR fattening and putting a fine finish on table poultry wet mash invariably gives the best results. It builds flesh rapidly and this is at once tender and fine in flavor. The birds should be confined in fattening crates or small pens and fed all the mash they will clean up. A special fattening mixture should be used for this purpose and the material should be ground extra fine to facilitate digestion.

Sweetness and Light

EVIDENTLY the burglars who infiltrated the racketeering called boxing in this country are up on their toes. There is a deal about to be made in the New York State for a charity fund. It must be that the plug-uglies of the underworld have been brushing up on their Bible. For it is written that charity shall cover the multitude of sins.

Somberly and indignantly, they attended Carnera for the Battle of the Dirty Towel. The Battle of the Dirty Towel took place in Oakland, Calif., which is a long way from New York, but for reasons best known to themselves, New York concurred in the action of the California Commission, suspending the bulky boy.

Funny Business

THE Battle of the Dirty Towel was like this, you see. One of the records of Bombo Chevalier, growing suddenly and inexplicably fat of heart when he saw Chevalier slip to the damp canvas and take a count of nine while resting on one knee, hauled away and hung a towel into the arena, terminating the shoving and hauling. It was all very strange, as Chevalier seemed healthy enough at the time.

The California Boxing Commission held one of those very constructive investigations and Primo was suspended, given his money and bailed Godspeed. So New York followed California's action, which New York does when it sees fit.

Sylvester Pays

PEOPLE however, represented in the person of Sylvester U. Sapp, the guy who encourages burglary by paying to see it done, continued to patronize the Carnera caravan. The Primo went his way in Michigan and Pennsylvania, piling up huge figures at the box office. Now, New York has several charities it likes to give a great big hand to. One of them is the milk fund. In order to buy milk for the kiddies, Max Schmeling, who had been suspended for his failure to carry out the commission's order

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

A TON of money from the east poured into Los Angeles and San Francisco on Carnera to win over Godfrey, according to Tom Laird, San Francisco sports editor. . . . the Italian was a 2½ to 1 favorite to win. . . . and a lot of San Francisco gamblers, who had seen the Carnera-Chevalier fiasco, bet on Godfrey. . . . a Philadelphia newspaper is running a column called, "The Foul Bag," in which irate citizens air their bruises. . . . Baron Jimmy Dougherty, manager of Godfrey, says "that big hound quit on me," referring to Godfrey's fouling of Carnera. . . . Knute Rockne saw the Poughkeepsie regatta but refused to talk football because it was so hot. . . . it must have been warm there. . . . Babe Herman made his first error of the season on his birthday recently. . . . Victorio Campolo wishes to have it announced that his brother, Felipe, is only manager. . . . evidently he's not doing piece-work.

that he fight Phil Scott, was reinstated to meet a Bostonian of Lithuanian extraction named Jack Sharkey.

The milk fund drew a rate of nearly $800,000 and charity prospered by something like $155,000.

Pretty soon New York is going to stage a boxing show for the cancer fund. Another charity show.

So it is necessary, not to say imperative, that another suspended boxer be reinstated in order to help sweet charity. In other words, Carnera is the only boxer in America right now who could do the cancer fund any good whatever.

For charity they lifted the suspension from Schmeling. For charity would they beckon Carnera with open arms?

It is written that charity shall cover the multitude of sins. Amen.

"In Gay Madrid" Now Showing at Saenger

The color and romantic flavor usually associated with the pictures of Ramon Novarro are again to be found in profusion in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer star's latest all-talking and singing production, "In Gay Madrid," which opened yesterday afternoon at the Saenger Theatre.

Laid in a picturesque setting with gay Spanish costumes and charming music, the story tells of Ricardo, son of the Marquis de Castelar, who because of his wild escapades in Madrid with the dancer Goyita, is sent to a small university at Santiago where he promptly falls in love with the beautiful Carmina. His father favors the match and they are about to announce their engagement when the jealous Goyita comes from Madrid, hides herself in Ricardo's room and is subsequently discovered in his bed. The climax results when Carmina's brother challenges Ricardo to a duel to avenge the insult and almost kills him. But the complications are cleared up and all's well that ends well.

Novarro as the rollicking Ricardo gives a dashing, romantic performance, while his sense of humor makes itself even more apparent than in "Devil May Care." His appealing personality makes his songs seem doubly charming, the young Latin having a certain knack of putting over intimate melodies which accounts for no small amount of his attention. "Let Me Give You Love," "Santiago," "Into My Heart," "Wine, Women and Song" and "Smile Comrades," are all splendid numbers.

Atop the Open Field

Flashing a spectacular second round of 70, two strokes under par, young Horton Smith, above, the former Joplin, Mo., boy wonder, stood out as a probable winner of the National Open golf championship at Interlachen Country Club, Minneapolis. Smith's total of 142 strokes placed him in the lead two strokes ahead of Bobby Jones, the defending champion and pre-tournament favorite, as the final day's play of 36 holes began.

4-H Clubs of Co. To Fayetteville

Representatives From Most Clubs of County Expected to Attend

Hempstead county 4-H clubs will send a record delegation of members to Farmers' Week at Fayetteville, August 5, 6, 7, and 8, according to Grover C. Kincaid, assistant county agent in charge of boy's 4-H club work.

Local communities throughout the county are raising funds to defray expenses of their own club delegates. The clubs of Sweethome, Blevins, Fulton, DeAnn, Green Laster, Shover Springs Hill, and others have raised money by means of pie or cream suppers. Some delegates are being financed by merchants of the local towns and other individuals.

The annual encampment of 4-H club members at Farmers' Week affords a wonderful opportunity to farm boys and girls in an educational and recreational way. It gives those who attend this event a chance to inspect the different colleges at the State University which aids in creating a desire for getting into the higher channels of learning.

Plans are under way according to Mr. Kincaid to secure a sufficient number of school buses to convey all club delegates and other people desiring to make the trip to Fayetteville.
